	R Graham informed that during the writing process, regular reports will be brought to the SPAG until the strategies are agreed by the IJB around September 2025.
	L Gallacher queried the gap between the previous action plan being completed in December 2024 and the new action plan not being implemented until September 2025.
	R Graham assured that although this is the process and they are not reporting on any such action plan at the moment, the work is very much still taking place.
	S Tyeson explained that is it circumstantial in terms of the national direction, however, does not stop the work from ongoing and assured that they continue to engage with carers to ensure the services being offered are fit for purpose.
	S Tyeson noted that the ability of the team to progress with some of the strategic work has been evidenced and they are able to report on this via Pentana, where they are expected to set a target date. Some of the actions are met well in advance and others will carry forward into the new strategy in 2025.
	The group noted the content of the report and agreed the recommendations.
9.	Draft Needs Analysis - Learning Disability
	S Tyeson advised that this report is presented to SPAG for information and comment. S Tyeson informed that as a service it is essential to consider future needs and potential impact. The paper has been written in line with the existing Learning Disability Strategy 2022.
	S Tyeson explained that appendix 1 is a high-level detailed needs analysis outlining the residential services and nursing care services which are currently available for those individuals who have complex learning disability and/or mental health needs.
	S Tyeson advised that is it anticipated that this draft analysis of need could and will be shared with providers who approach the HSCP as part of their routine forward planning as a potential area for further exploration.
	S Tyeson reassured that there is no current plan to commission needed, a locally developed service, which was sustainable in both financial and resource may be a viable opportunity for external development. The report is for information and consideration only at this time and to ensure SPAG are kept informed. S Tyeson explained that she has included a costing model within the papers. If the partnership did wish to invest in a particular service offered, providers would be expected to complete this is full, encouraging them to consider where funding may come from <ul> <li>if the service were to continue for a substantial number of years.</li> <li>S Tyeson informed that this is a high-level positioning statement giving providers an opportunity to put across proposals to the partnership about services they feel they could provide which would be of benefit.</li> <li>The group considered the content of the report.</li> </ul>

10.	Liberated Method - Mutual Ventures
	G Hoey informed that Liberated Method is about the aspect of unleashing power that is within our communities, person centred planning and working with families before looking at statutory services. K Anderson advised it is building on the ongoing work in Wallcetown where there has been a community planning based approach and building relationships with our most frequent service users. Also looking at how this links with GIRFAN and other Community Planning Partnerships.
	Cllr Hunter advised that although encouraged by this, he remains slightly cynical in terms of the number of years substantial investment has been made within Ayr North, with no significant changes.
	K Anderson agreed that there has been a lot invested in Ayr North area and outcomes haven't improved greatly, however with a strong CPP in place now who want to see change and who are willing to support with resources and time and people fully committed to their roles he is hopeful there will be evident benefits and opportunities quite quickly.

	K Anderson informed that Wallcetown recently picked up an award for the work Gavin Kennedy, Wallcetown Co-ordinator is undertaking and is receiving a lot of interest nationally.
	Cllr Hunter welcomed an update in 6 months' time.
	The group noted the content of the report.
